

Westward Newsletter Planner

CONFLICT/COOPERATION. You are writing an article about an issue that people disagreed on or had two opposing points of view. It could be a conflict that the United States has with another country, a war or battle, a sectional difference between the North and South, Native American or Immigrant conflict.

Who is involved?

What is the issue? What is happening? What's the big deal?:

When is this taking place? How does the time period shape this event?

Where does this conflict take place? How does the place the setting shape the issue?

Why is this issue so important or significant? Why is it worth reporting?

How does it end up? What is the result?

SOURCES:

TECHNOLOGY/INDUSTRY:

You are writing an article about an issue that people disagreed on or had two opposing points of view. It could be a conflict that the United States has with another country, a war or battle, a sectional difference between the North and South, Native American or Immigrant conflict.

Who is involved?

What is the issue? What is happening? What's the big deal?:

When is this taking place? How does the time period shape this event?

Where does this conflict take place? How does the place the setting shape the issue?

Why is this issue so important or significant? Why is it worth reporting?

How does it end up? What is the result?

SOURCES:

SOCIAL/CULTURAL:

You are writing an article about an issue that people disagreed on or had two opposing points of view. It could be a conflict that the United States has with another country, a war or battle, a sectional difference between the North and South, Native American or Immigrant conflict.

Who is involved?

What is the issue? What is happening? What's the big deal?:

When is this taking place? How does the time period shape this event?

Where does this conflict take place? How does the place the setting shape the issue?

Why is this issue so important or significant? Why is it worth reporting?

How does it end up? What is the result?

SOURCES:
